"Since 1908 the Taiwan government-general and the Japanese navy have paid special attention to oil production in Taiwan, but up to now this branch of mining has been more productive of subsidies to oil producers than of oil itself. It was mentioned above that in 1936 the value of oil produced in Taiwan was ¥312,000 and that of gasoline, ¥456,000. However, in the 1937 budget of the government-general ¥1,005,000 was earmarked as subsidies for oil producers and prospectors. Daily production of oil in the last few years has been about 5,000 American gallons."
